Senator

Bill
Finkbeiner

45th Legislative District

Dear Friends,

I'd like to provide you with my 2003 Government Guide. This guide includes addresses, phone numbers and e-mail addresses for city, county, state and federal government offices.

It explains how to keep up on government affairs by listening in on deliberations at the Legislature from your home computer and also lists important numbers for seniors.

In the middle section of this guide you'll find information on two of the issues we're facing this session in Olympia—Transportation and Education. I hope this information will provide some background on the issues, and help you understand the challenge we face when working toward a solution in the Legislature. If you have questions, or seek more information, please don't hesitate to contact my office.

I hope this resource helps you stay in touch with your neighborhood, community, state and federal governments.

As always, I want to express my gratitude for the chance to serve as your representative in the State Senate in Olympia. I'm very proud to serve the 45th District on your behalf. Please remember to contact me whenever you have comments or questions about what's going on in Olympia. I welcome your comments and questions that make our part of King County an even better place for families to live.

In An Emergency Please Dial 911

An Invitation to Olympia

Washington's Capitol Building and its surrounding campus make Olympia one of the nation's most beautiful state capitols.

The Capitol Campus is a year-round tourist destination and the Legislative Building is its center piece. Originally completed in 1927, the Capitol was refurbished for the state's Centennial in 1989.

Olympia visitors also can enjoy the Temple of Justice where the Supreme Court meets, the Governor's Mansion, the Old Capitol Building and several veterans' memorials situated on the 30-acre campus.

Capitol Tours: Public tours are held daily from 10 a.m. - 3 p.m. on the hour (registration not required). Larger groups or schools should call (360) 586-8687 to schedule a private tour.

Ambulance • Fire • Police • Emergencies

At any time of the day or night, you may contact needed emergency services simply by dialing 911 and giving the following information:

1. Nature of the emergency.
2. Exact location—street address, etc.
3. Number of the phone from which you are calling.
4. WAIT—Additional information may be needed.

Always make sure the operator hangs up first.

Voter Registration

To register to vote, you must be:

- A citizen of the United States
- A legal resident of Washington State
- At least 18 years old by election day

You may register to vote at any time, but you must be registered at least 30 days in advance of an election if you wish to vote at a polling place on election day. You may also register between 30 and 15 days before an election, but you must do so at a location designated by the county elections officer, and you will be required to vote by absentee ballot.

How to register: Mail-in registration forms are available from your county auditor or county elections department as well as many public libraries, schools and other government offices. "Motor Voter" registration is offered when you renew or apply for your driver's license.

Absentee ballots: You may request an absentee ballot as early as 45 days before an election. (No absentee ballots are issued on election day except to hospitalized voters.) Absentee ballots may be requested either by phone or by mail from the county elections officer. You may also apply in writing to automatically receive an absentee ballot before each election.

NOTE: Absentee ballots must be signed and postmarked or delivered to the county election officer on or before election day.

Transportation - How did we get here?

Over the last 20 years, there have been huge increases in traffic volume, resulting in 184% growth in daily hours of delay. The Washington Transportation Alliance estimates that the average commuter in the Puget Sound area spends 20 minutes a day, or 84 hours a year, stuck in traffic. This amounts to an average loss in time and money equivalent to $720 per driver per year, or $1.4 billion to the region annually—$2 billion statewide.

The state's capital investment in transportation infrastructure has not kept pace with demand. In fact, annual levels of transportation investment have fallen sharply in relation to state total personal income, even as real dollar income has more than doubled. For 1992-98, highway spending in the state budget totaled only 6.7% of direct state spending—ranking 40th among the states.

Timely maintenance and preservation is the key to getting the maximum life from our pavements. For every dollar not spent on timely preventive maintenance, $4 to $8 will be needed for complete reconstruction a few years later.

Everyone in Washington State wants to know what is being done to fight the congestion on our freeways and highways that has been caused by the increased demands on our transportation facilities over the years. I wanted to take this opportunity to educate you on some of the issues surrounding the policy, goals and obligations for improving the state's transportation system.

The Gas Tax

The state gas tax, which has been set at 23 cents per gallon since 1991, is expected to generate $1.463 billion for the current biennium. The Department of Transportation retains about 12 cents for every 23 cents collected. The remaining portions of the fuel tax revenues are distributed directly to cities, counties and other agencies for local projects that are not part of the state highway system. Regardless of who is spending tax revenues, the 18th Amendment requires that proceeds be used for highway purposes.

Washington's gas tax rate falls at about the median of the 50 states. The national average state and local gasoline tax rate is currently 23.06 cents per gallon. This places Washington's gas tax slightly lower than the national average and considerably lower than tax rates in states with congestion problems similar to ours. However, our reliance on gas tax and user taxes to fund highway programs was almost 40% higher than the national median—second among the states. Yet, Washington, since 1984, has raised its gas tax by a smaller percentage than forty-four of the other states.

This, coupled with the fact the vehicles have increasingly better gas mileage, requiring less gas and therefore less tax, has contributed to the state's capital investment in transportation infrastructure not keeping pace with demand. Total personal income in Washington State has more than doubled since 1980, while the WSDPT Transportation Capital Outlay per Dollar of personal income has fallen by 50% since 1980.

On average, every 1 cent of gas tax brings in $32.1 million in revenue each year, or $64.2 million each biennium.

2003 Government Guide

Inflation has eroded the purchasing power of the gas tax since its last increase in 1991. This loss has been offset only in part by overall increased gasoline sales. The gas tax rate has fallen in real dollar terms since 1991, by about 28 percent. That means the purchasing power of 23 cents in 1991 has the purchasing power of slightly less than 17 cents today. The overall value of total gas tax revenues has fallen in real dollar terms since 1991 by about 7 percent. Over this same time period, vehicle miles traveled has increased by 23 percent.

Reforms and Efficiencies

A healthy transportation system is a vital element of a healthy economy. Accountability will improve our transportation system and therefore improve Washington's economic infrastructure. Current efforts to help transportation operate more efficiently and better utilize taxpayer money include:

HB 1120 - Creates a citizen oversight panel to measure performance of the state's transportation system.

SB 5748/HB 1121 - Implements performance audits of transportation-related agencies. While the State Auditor's Office regularly audits state and local government agencies focusing on accounting controls and statutory compliance, performance audits focus on the operational effectiveness and efficiency of an organization or program.

ESHB 1122 - Dissolves the Transportation Commission and transfers their powers directly to DOT. The Commission's policy and planning responsibilities are transferred to the Legislative Transportation Committee.

SB 5245 - Involves legislators in transportation planning—adds a requirement that when the members of a Regional Transportation Planning Organization take action on matters that solely affect Washington State, there must be a majority vote of the Washington residents serving as members of the RPTO before the matter may be adopted.

SB 5248 - Adopts transportation workforce efficiencies including: An employee retention program, the ability to acquire construction-engineering services from private firms; establish apprenticeship opportunities in transportation, assess prevailing wages; establishes transportation planning and efficiency measures between counties, public transportation benefit areas, regional transit authorities and municipalities.

SB 5279 - Extends the expiration date of the Transportation Permit Efficiency and Accountability Committee from March 31, 2003 until March 31, 2009. This legislation appropriates money to the Transportation Permit Efficiency and Accountability Committee established by law in 2001. This committee was directed to conduct three environmental permit streamlining projects, develop a one-stop permit decision-making process, seek federal delegation of permitting where appropriate, develop a dispute resolution process and develop various other permitting efficiency measures.

SB 5585 - Expands the authority of transportation benefit districts established last year providing for the funding of regional transportation improvements in the central Puget Sound Area to offer similar regional transportation funding options to the other regions of the state.

2003 Government Guide

SB 5769 - Authorizes bond authority for regional transportation investment districts enabling them to solicit revenue through bonds.

What else should be done? Considerations this session include a smaller gas tax increase than that proposed in Referendum 51, between 3 and 5 cents per gallon. In addition, discussions are ongoing to automatically increase the state gas tax with the construction cost index. This would enable the fuel tax to go up in relationship to the costs of building highways so that the buying power of the tax isn't continually eroded by inflation. I would appreciate your thoughts and input on this as we negotiate a transportation plan.

Education

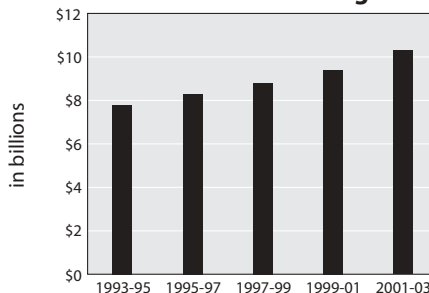

Education is one of the most passionately debated issues in Olympia and throughout Washington. Teacher salary, classroom standards and levy issues continue to remain in the public spotlight. But while these issues are often discussed, proper information and background is not always included. In this section I'll try to clear up some of the facts and issues regarding K-12 education

State Education Spending

Funding for K-12 education represents the largest portion of our state's general fund budget, roughly 44 percent. This equaled over $10.2 billion for the 2001-03 budget. Spending on K-12 education rose 9.0 percent in this past budget. From 1993 to present, spending on K-12 education in Washington has increased by almost 33 percent.

(Source: Senate Ways and Means)

K-12 State Funding

2003 Government Guide

During that same period, the state portion of per-student funding has gone from $4,348 per student in 1993 to $5,358 in 2003. This represents an increase of 23 percent.

Teacher Salaries

Many of you may wonder where Washington ranks when it comes to teacher pay. The following information comes from the Washington state Superintendent of Public Instruction:

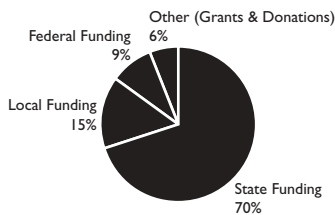

- For the 2001-2002 school year, the average Certificated Washington K-12 teacher had a base salary of $43,866. (Source: OSPI)
- When average supplemental contracts of $3,671 are included, the average salary jumps to $47,537. (Source: OSPI)
- Washington ranked 19th highest in the nation for teacher salaries in 2001-02. This represented a jump of three spots from Washington's 1998-99 ranking of 22nd.
- The average teacher salary in Washington is 13 percent higher than the average private sector job in the state.

In addition, teachers receive average insurance benefits of $4,200 and mandatory benefits of $5,500. This raises the compensation package for state teachers to an average of $55,100. (Source: LEAP Historical Database, OSPI)

What is a levy?

School funding is primarily made up of three parts—state money, local money and federal money. For the 2001-02 school year, state funding represented on average about 70 percent of the funding, local funding about 15 percent, federal funding about nine percent and other funding like grants and donations the final six percent. The local portion of the pie comes from locally approved levies funded through local property tax dollars.

School Funding Breakdown

Schools rely on Maintenance & Operations (or M&O) levies to collect that local money. This is different than school bonds, which are used to pay for the maintenance or construction of new schools. The amount of money collected through local levies is tied into the state budget due to levy lids based on state law.
